

SLUG SNAIL AND SLATER TRAP

- Grab an old sour cream container or anything that will hold some liquid. Dig a hole in the garden where you are planting your seedlings, put container in the hole, put two tablespoons of plain yoghurt/sour cream in
- Pour half a cup of water (hot water in cold weather) into the container
- Stir the yoghurt/sour cream until it is mixed.
- Leave for a week to do its job.
- If you have a pet you might want to put some chook or parrot wire over the top and tuck it down the sides, it's not poisonous but it stinks after a week and dogs tend to put there nose in it.
- After a week tips, the container out (it's about this time when you want to hold your breath, it stinks) and you will see sometimes hundreds of slaters.
- After you tip it out just cover with some soil, the worms will love it.
